Implants – Terminal Dentition

As our patients are aging, failure of their existing teeth and prostheses are requiring the need for more demanding and complex dental treatment. We are observing in a greater number of our patients they reach a time (terminal dentition) when the eventuality of entire tooth loss is unavoidable.

In this combined lecture from both the prosthodontic and Oral surgical aspects, we hope to share with you our experiences in managing these patients so that you may be able to use these philosophies in your daily practice.
